EMPLOYEE LEAVE OF ABSENCE POLICY

Document ID: HR-POL-014

Version: 2.1

Effective Date: January 1, 2026

Last Reviewed: December 10, 2025

Document Owner: Human Resources Department

Classification: Internal Use Only

1. PURPOSE

Nexora Technologies Pvt. Ltd. recognizes that employees may occasionally require time away from work for personal, medical, family, or other significant circumstances.

This Leave of Absence Policy establishes the company's general requirements for requesting, approving, recording, and returning from an extended period of absence.

The purpose of this policy is to:

- Provide employees with a clear leave process
 - Support employees during significant personal circumstances
 - Maintain consistent leave administration
 - Ensure appropriate staffing and business continuity
 - Comply with applicable employment and leave laws

2. SCOPE

This policy applies to employees of Nexora Technologies Pvt. Ltd. who request an extended absence from work.

Different leave entitlements may apply depending on:

- Employee classification
- Length of service
- Work location
- Employment agreement
- Applicable law
- Company benefits eligibility

Where applicable law provides greater rights or protections than this policy, the applicable law will take precedence.

3. TYPES OF LEAVE

Depending on eligibility and applicable requirements, employees may request the following types of leave:

1. Medical Leave
2. Personal Leave
3. Family and Caregiver Leave
4. Maternity Leave
5. Paternity / Parental Leave
6. Bereavement Leave
7. Emergency Leave
8. Study or Education Leave
9. Military or Civic Leave, where applicable
10. Statutory Leave
11. Unpaid Leave of Absence

Not every leave category is available to every employee.

4. GENERAL LEAVE PRINCIPLES

Employees should request leave as early as reasonably possible.

Leave approval depends on:

- Employee eligibility
- Available leave balance where applicable
- Required documentation
- Business requirements
- Applicable law
- Manager and HR approval

Employees must not assume that a leave request has been approved until confirmation has been received through the company's approved HR process.

Unauthorized absence may be treated as an attendance violation.

5. SHORT-TERM LEAVE

Short-term leave generally refers to planned or unplanned absences that do not require an extended leave of absence.

Examples include:

- Short illness
- Medical appointments
- Personal emergencies
- Family responsibilities
- Other approved personal circumstances

Employees should use the company's standard leave management system for short-term leave requests.

For unexpected absences, employees should notify their manager as soon as reasonably possible.

6. EXTENDED LEAVE OF ABSENCE

An extended leave of absence is a period of absence that exceeds the employee's normal leave allowance or requires a formal leave arrangement.

Examples may include:

- Extended medical circumstances
- Significant family responsibilities
- Extended personal circumstances
- Maternity or parental leave
- Other legally protected leave
- Approved unpaid leave

Employees requesting extended leave should contact HR before the proposed start date whenever reasonably possible.

7. MEDICAL LEAVE

Employees who are unable to work because of illness or injury may request medical leave according to applicable company policy and law.

Employees should notify their manager and HR as soon as reasonably possible.

For extended medical leave, the company may request appropriate documentation confirming the employee's inability to work and, where legally permitted, information necessary to determine expected duration or work restrictions.

Employees are not required to disclose unnecessary medical details to their manager.

Medical information provided to HR will be handled confidentially and only shared with authorized individuals who have a legitimate business or legal need to know.

8. MEDICAL CERTIFICATION

For extended or recurring medical leave, HR may request reasonable supporting documentation where permitted by applicable law.

Documentation may include:

- Medical certificate
- Fitness-to-work confirmation
- Expected duration of absence
- Work restrictions
- Expected return-to-work date

The company will not request information beyond what is reasonably necessary for administering the leave, subject to applicable law.

9. MATERNITY LEAVE

Eligible employees may take maternity leave in accordance with applicable law and company policy.

Employees should notify HR as early as reasonably possible regarding the expected leave period.

Where applicable, employees may be required to provide documentation supporting the expected delivery date and leave period.

Nexora will administer maternity leave and related benefits in accordance with applicable legal requirements.

Employees returning from maternity leave will be supported through the company's standard return-to-work process.

10. PATERNITY AND PARENTAL LEAVE

Eligible employees may request paternity or parental leave in accordance with applicable law and company policy.

Employees should submit their expected leave dates to HR as early as reasonably possible.

The applicable entitlement may depend on:

- Employee eligibility
- Employment status
- Applicable law

- Childbirth or adoption circumstances
 - Company policy

11. ADOPTION AND SURROGACY-RELATED LEAVE

Where applicable under law and company policy, employees may be eligible for leave related to adoption or becoming a parent through other legally recognized arrangements.

Employees should contact HR to determine eligibility and documentation requirements.

Leave will be administered consistently with applicable legal requirements.

12. FAMILY AND CAREGIVER LEAVE

Employees may request leave to care for an immediate family member who requires significant assistance because of illness, injury, or another qualifying circumstance.

The employee may be required to provide reasonable supporting documentation where permitted by law.

Employees should notify their manager and HR as soon as possible so that appropriate work coverage can be arranged.

13. BEREAVEMENT LEAVE

Employees may be granted bereavement leave following the death of an immediate family member or another person where company policy permits.

The standard company allowance is:

Up to 3 working days of paid bereavement leave.

Additional unpaid or other applicable leave may be considered depending on the circumstances.

Employees should contact HR if additional time is required.

The company may request reasonable documentation where appropriate, but will handle such requests sensitively.

14. EMERGENCY LEAVE

Employees may request emergency leave when unexpected circumstances prevent them from attending work.

Examples include:

- Serious family emergencies
- Unexpected accidents

- Urgent household situations
- Other significant unforeseen events

Employees should notify their manager as soon as practical.

HR may determine whether the absence should be recorded as another applicable leave category.

15. PERSONAL LEAVE

Employees may request unpaid personal leave for significant personal circumstances that cannot reasonably be managed through normal leave entitlements.

Personal leave is subject to approval and business requirements unless protected by applicable law.

Examples may include:

- Important family responsibilities
- Extended personal matters
- Relocation
- Significant personal commitments

Employees should provide reasonable advance notice whenever possible.

16. STUDY OR EDUCATIONAL LEAVE

Employees may request time away from work for approved educational or professional development activities.

Approval may depend on:

- Relevance to the employee's role
- Business requirements
- Duration
- Performance
- Department staffing

The company may approve paid, partially paid, or unpaid educational leave depending on the circumstances and applicable policy.

17. UNPAID LEAVE

Unpaid leave may be approved when an employee requires additional time away from work after available paid leave has been exhausted or when the circumstances do not qualify for another paid leave category.

Approval is not automatic.

Before approving unpaid leave, the company may consider:

- Reason for leave
- Duration
- Employee performance
- Staffing requirements
- Business impact
- Previous leave history
- Legal requirements

Employees should understand the potential effect of unpaid leave on salary, benefits, bonuses, and other employment-related entitlements.

18. REQUESTING LEAVE

Employees should submit leave requests through the company's approved HR system.

A request should generally include:

- Employee name
- Department
- Type of leave
- Start date
- Expected return date
- Reason where required
- Supporting documentation where applicable
- Contact information during leave, where appropriate

Employees should submit requests as early as reasonably possible.

19. NOTICE REQUIREMENTS

For planned leave, employees should provide reasonable advance notice.

As a general guideline:

- Short planned leave: at least 2 working days' notice

- Extended leave: at least 15 calendar days' notice where reasonably possible
- Maternity or parental leave: notify HR as early as practical
- Emergency leave: notify the manager as soon as possible

Legal or protected leave may have different notice requirements.

20. LEAVE APPROVAL

The employee's manager generally reviews the operational impact of the request.

HR may review:

- Eligibility
- Leave balance
- Documentation
- Applicable law
- Benefit implications
- Required approvals

A leave request becomes effective only after the required approval has been provided.

21. LEAVE EXTENSIONS

Employees who need additional time beyond their approved leave period must contact their manager and HR before the approved return date whenever reasonably possible.

Extensions are subject to applicable law, available leave categories, documentation, and approval requirements.

Employees should not remain absent beyond an approved leave period without communicating with the company.

22. DURING LEAVE

Employees on approved leave are generally not expected to perform normal work duties unless specifically agreed or required by applicable law.

Employees should provide updated contact information to HR where necessary.

Employees should not access confidential company information during leave unless authorized and required for a legitimate business purpose.

Managers should avoid unnecessary work-related communication with employees who are on protected or medical leave.

23. BENEFITS DURING LEAVE

The effect of leave on employee benefits depends on:

- Type of leave
- Paid or unpaid status
- Employee eligibility
- Benefit plan rules
- Applicable law

Employees taking extended unpaid leave should contact HR before beginning leave to understand how the absence may affect benefits.

24. SALARY DURING LEAVE

Paid leave will be processed according to the applicable leave category and payroll schedule.

Unpaid leave may result in a corresponding salary deduction.

Employees should contact Payroll or HR if they have questions regarding the financial impact of an approved leave.

25. HOLIDAYS DURING LEAVE

Treatment of public holidays that occur during an employee's leave may vary depending on:

- Type of leave
- Whether the leave is paid or unpaid
- Company policy
- Applicable law

HR can confirm how holidays will be treated for an individual leave period.

26. RETURN TO WORK

Employees are expected to return to work on the approved return date.

For certain extended medical leaves, HR may request reasonable confirmation that the employee is able to return to work or whether work restrictions or accommodations are required, where permitted by law.

Employees returning from extended leave should communicate with their manager regarding:

- Work priorities
- Team updates

- Changes during their absence
 - Required training
 - Access to systems
 - Transition back into normal responsibilities

27. RETURN-TO-WORK PLAN

For extended absences, HR and the employee's manager may establish a return-to-work plan.

The plan may include:

- Confirmed return date
- Work schedule
- Temporary responsibilities
- Required training
- Work restrictions or accommodations
- Project handover
- Review of policy or system changes

The objective is to support a smooth transition back into the workplace.

28. FAILURE TO RETURN FROM LEAVE

An employee who does not return on the approved date and fails to communicate with the company may be considered absent without authorization.

The company will make reasonable efforts to contact the employee where appropriate.

Continued unauthorized absence may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination, subject to applicable law.

29. LEAVE AND PERFORMANCE

Employees will not be penalized solely for taking leave that they are legally entitled to use.

Performance evaluations should distinguish between legitimate approved leave and actual performance issues.

Managers should not discourage employees from using legally protected leave.

30. FRAUDULENT LEAVE REQUESTS

Employees must provide accurate information when requesting leave.

Examples of misconduct may include:

- Falsifying medical documentation
- Misrepresenting the reason for leave
- Claiming leave under false circumstances
- Working another job while on restricted leave without authorization
- Failing to disclose required information

Fraudulent leave claims may result in disciplinary action.

31. MANAGER RESPONSIBILITIES

Managers are responsible for:

- Reviewing leave requests promptly
- Applying leave policies consistently
- Maintaining appropriate confidentiality
- Planning workload coverage
- Avoiding retaliation or discrimination
- Escalating complex cases to HR
- Supporting employees returning from extended leave

Managers should not make independent exceptions to legally protected leave requirements.

32. HUMAN RESOURCES RESPONSIBILITIES

HR is responsible for:

- Maintaining leave records
 - Advising employees and managers
 - Reviewing eligibility
 - Administering applicable leave programs
 - Coordinating benefits where required
 - Maintaining appropriate confidentiality
 - Ensuring policy administration is consistent with applicable requirements

33. CONFIDENTIALITY

Information related to an employee's medical condition, family circumstances, or personal reasons for leave should be treated confidentially.

Managers should only receive information necessary to manage staffing and work responsibilities.

Employees should not be required to disclose private personal information to coworkers.

34. LEAVE RECORDS

All approved leave should be recorded in the company's designated HR system.

Employees should review their leave balances periodically and report discrepancies to HR.

HR records will be maintained according to company retention requirements and applicable law.

35. CONTACTING HR

Employees who have questions about leave eligibility, documentation, benefits, or return-to-work requirements should contact:

Human Resources: hr@nexora.example

Payroll: payroll@nexora.example

HR Service Hours: Monday–Friday, 9:00 AM–6:00 PM

The email addresses above are examples for this sample handbook and are not real company contact addresses.

36. POLICY EXCEPTIONS

Any exception to this policy must be approved by HR and, where necessary, the appropriate business or legal authority.

Exceptions cannot be used to reduce rights provided by applicable law.

37. POLICY VIOLATIONS

Failure to comply with this policy may result in corrective or disciplinary action.

Examples include:

- Unauthorized absence
- Failure to follow leave procedures
- Falsification of leave records
- Submission of fraudulent documentation
- Failure to return company property where required

- Misuse of leave benefits

Disciplinary action will depend on the circumstances and applicable law.

38. POLICY REVIEW

This policy will generally be reviewed annually by the Human Resources Department.

The company may update this policy when:

- Laws or regulations change
- Business requirements change
- Benefits programs change
- Internal processes change
- HR identifies a need for clarification

Employees will be informed of significant changes through official communication channels.
